Cardno announces appointment of new Division Manager for Victoria

Cardno Limited is pleased to announce the appointment of Chris Butler to the position of Division Manager, Victoria, as the present Division Manager, Steve Richards, moves into a consulting role as of 27 June.

Mr Butler is currently the Business Unit Manager of Cardno Grogan Richards' Traffic and Transport area and has a long history with Cardno and the former Grogan Richards business.

Cardno Managing Director Andrew Buckley said Mr Butler brings broad experience to the role including his technical expertise and in-depth knowledge of the Victorian market. Mr Butler has been involved in landmark projects including Melbourne Docklands, Crown Casino and the Flemington Race Course Master Plan to name a few.

"Chris' skills, combined with his more than 22 years experience as a traffic and transport engineer with Cardno, Grogan Richards and the Road Traffic Authority (now VicRoads) make Chris the perfect fit for the Victorian Division and our company going forward," Mr Buckley said.

"Chris has demonstrated his ability as a business leader while heading up the highly successful Traffic Business Unit. I am confident he can repeat this success in his new role and lead the Victorian Division as Cardno continues to grow," he said.

Mr Butler replaces Steve Richards, who has made the decision to step down as Division Manager after more than 25 years with Cardno and Grogan Richards.

"Steve has been instrumental in the success of the Grogan Richards business and a key member of Cardno's senior management team since the two companies merged in 2006. I thank Steve for his significant contribution and commitment," Mr Buckley said.

Mr Richards will continue to be involved with Cardno, consulting to the Victorian Division on special projects.
